Montevideo Success Has Made New Man Of Secretary Hull

WASHINGTON—The Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, has come back from South America a new man. When he left he was fidgety and alarmed. Not long before he departed he even went to Roosevelt and asked to be relieved of his job as chief American delegate. Even on the boat enroute to Montevideo he had the appearance of a man about to become a target for Latin bomb-throwers.

Several things changed all this.

One was his discovery that the Latin Americans didn't object to his taking the initiative. In fact they liked it. They especially liked it when he started out calling on them, instead of vice versa.

Another was his sincerity. Also his homely mountaineer philosophy. Hull's desire to co-operate, his idea that the United States was no better than the others, became so obvious that he disarmed his enemies. Instead of throwing bombs they threw bouquets.

Hull made a lot of little mistakes. He had an awful time pronouncing some of the Latin American names. The Chilean Foreign Minister he sometimes called "Mr. Chicago."

"Senor Cruchaga," corrected the punctilious Jimmy Dunn, State Department aide.

The Argentine Foreign Minister he referred to as "Mr. Savannah."

"You mean Senor Saavedra Lamas," suggested Mr. Dunn.

"Well, the Argentine," Mr. Hull concurred.

With this particular Argentine, the Secretary of State formed a fast friendship, even a partnership. Saavedra Lamas had been a thorn in the side of the United States for many months. He had written notes to the State Department that made Secretary Stimson squirm. He was considered the chief enemy of the Colossus of the North.

Cordell Hull singled him out from the first. He knew Saacedra Lamas had as his pet project a nonaggression pact. He knew also that Secretary Stimson on March 3—last day of the Hoover regime—had sent a note to Argentina puncturing this pet pact. Finally Hull knew that Argentina had never ratified the Kellogg Pact and various other Pan American conciliation treaties.

So he unfolded to Saacedra Lamas a plan to have someone propose that all of these treaties—a total of five—be accepted by the Pan American Conference. And with his natural backwoods astuteness, Hull said:

"I want to get the number one man in the entire conference to make this proposal. If I can't get him, I want to find the number two man."

The Argentine Foreign Minister proposed the treaties.

So now, Mr. Hull is thinking of proposing the name of Saavedra Lamas for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Ham and Hen

Ham Kean, walrus-moustached Senator from New Jersey, has a farm in Union County in that state. Ham was born there, loves the place. On it he raises stock and poultry of which he is justly proud.

Some time ago, Ham was standing outside his house when a passing motorist swished by. One of his hens was standing by the roadside in a position somewhat analogous to that of her owner trying to make up his mind which way to vote on a Senate bill.

Just at the wrongtime she made up her mind—and was killed.

"Hey, there!" yelled the Senator from New Jersey.

No reply but dust.

Mr. Kean however, is a better farmer than a Senator. Jumping into his own car, he pursued the fowl murderer, caught him, made him pay $2.65.

Uncharted Seas Face Legislature; Four Proposals Being Studied.

Its task was clearly defined, but it remained for the solons themselves to decide upon the fairest of many proposed avenues of approach to these problems.

Aimee's Fainting Spells Return As Trial Opens; Sensations Are Expected

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30.—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton today steeled herself to return to court where she is defendant in a $240,000 breach of contract suit that has already caused her to suffer a "fainting spell" and has brought hints of sensational charges to come.

Two strenuous legal tilts proved too much for the evangelist. She was forced to give intimate details of her married life with her rotund singer husband, David Hutton, in a deposition in their contested divorce suit, and in addition was a witness in the contract suit instituted by the late J. Ray Stewart, film director.

FOLLOWED QUESTION

Only a few minutes before Mrs. McPherson suffered collapse, attorneys representing the corporation suing on behalf of the Stewart interests asked her:

Dillinger On Way to East Chicago, Charged With Officer's Death.

OTHERS LEAVE SOON

Pierpont Is Certain To Be Given To Ohio

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 30.—While their Caesar of crime, shackled like a slave, was being flown back to his fallen empire of terror, six other members of the notorious Dillinger gang nervously bided their time today awaiting the hour when they, too, would be returned to the middle west they once pillaged and plundered.

Despite the filing of habeas corpus writ which the gangsters' attorney said would prevent the three men and three women from being removed from jail, Sheriff

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Jan. 30.—With the route shrouded in secrecy, Indiana police placed John Dillinger aboard an American airways eastbound plane last night at 11:15 p. m., and headed for El Paso, Tex.

Asked if his return to Indiana was voluntary, Dillinger snarled: "Not by a damned sight."

John F. Belton of Tucson declared he would surrender the prisoners to Capt. Matthew Leach of the Indiana state police as soon as the proper extradition papers were received from Gov. B. B. Moeur in Phoenix.

The papers were expected here sometime in the afternoon.

In a surprise move, Sheriff Belton late yesterday placed John Dillinger, leader of the gangsters who scrawled their names in blood over the middle west, on an airplane bound for East Chicago, Ind.

PLANE FOLLOWING

Another plane followed, loaded with machine guns and marksmen intent upon preventing any possible aerial attack by mobster friends of Dillinger. The gang leader, who was arrested here with his henchmen, will be tried in East Chicago for the slaying of Pat O'Malley, patrolman who was killed during the First National bank robbery.

The other bandits were to be arraigned today as fugitives from justice before Judge C. V. Budlong. The hearing, which in Arizona is a formality used to allow the time in which to prepare extradition papers, will be short.

If Gov. Moeur's orders have not been received by late afternoon, another hearing will be held on the habeas corpus action which was filed as an attempt to keep Sheriff Belton from moving the prisoners.

"You fellows are railroading me," Dillinger muttered as he was

STOCK MARKET PRICES CLIMB

Heaviest Buying Rush Seen Since Summer's Boom; Bond Prices Up.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—The heaviest buying rush since last summer's boom today sent the stock market up $1 to $2 a share to new highs on the move and the best prices since last July.

The ticker was swamped and fell 7 minutes behind. Rails were the pacemakers, followed by the farm stocks, steels, utilities and automobile shares. General motors sold at the highest price in three years.

Bonds displayed a buoyant tone, particularly the speculative issues, scored. Government bonds were steady. The dollar was slightly higher after yesterday's weakness, commanding a premium of more than two cents abroad over the 60-cent domestic level.

Bullish sentiment was stimuated by further gains in business, evidenced in higher steel and automobile production and a further improvement in railroad traffic, and the fact the President would sign the monetary bill later in the day.

Commodities were mixed. Wheat and cotton were higher while silver and rubber were down.

GOPHERS ON SPREE

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 30— The University of Minnesota basketball team today was tied with Indiana for fifth place in the Western conference standings, having defeated Chicago here last night by a score of 36 to 18.

Besides being shunted into last place in the big ten race the game cost the Chicago team the services of Bill Haarlow, star forward, who fractured a toe during a preliminary warm-up.

Although the Chicago five held the Gophers to a 9 to 9 deadlock in the first half, Minnesota came through after the half-time period and put on a wild scoring spree that netted 27 points.

led from the sheriff's office, his jaws set like a vice.

"I want to see my attorney at once. I won't go another step until I do."

GUARDED BY 20 MEN

A deputy sheriff poked a pistol in his back, and the outlaw swung into double time step with the officers. He was flanked by 24 riflemen, many of them cowboys.

Dillinger was shoved into an automobile, and a motorcycle detail surrounded the car.

At the airport, a plane had already been warmed up, and it was only eight minutes after he had been taken from jail that he was enroute to East Chicago, his hands manacled and three riflemen guarding him.

Dillinger's departure hurled a bombshell of terror among those left behind. Harry Pierpont spent the early part of the night pacing his cell like a caged lion. Russell Clark and Charles Makley talked in low tones most of the time. The jail matron reported that the three women were restless and slept only in fitful spells.

Knowing that Indiana will surrender him to Ohio, where he will be tried in Lima for the murder of a 70-year-old sheriff, Jess Sarber, Pierpont is regarded as the most dangerous of the desperadoes left here. Police plan a large escort of armed men when they place him on a plane.

CLASH AVERTED

A clash between Wisconsin and Indiana officers, which yesterday sent thunder clouds scurrying over two conferences, died away with the announcement of Gov. Moeur that the Wisconsin governor had waived his right to the prisoners. Dillinger's extradition was quickly arranged.

red to file a $10,000 alienation of affections suit against you?"

An objection to the question was sustained. Cromwell Ormsby was formerly Mrs. Hutton's attorney, and in the opening speech to Judge Leon Yankwich, Attorney Homer Johnstone, representing the plaintiff corporation, asserted that Mrs. Hutton abrogated the contract because she was about to be "involved in a scandal" with Ormsby.

The breach of contract suit centers on a movie, "Clay in The Potter's Hands," in which the evangelist has assertedly promised to appear.

Punkah is Large Fan

The punkah in use in India is a large fan, consisting of thin cotton cloth stretched over an exceedingly light frame of bamboo from 6 to 8 feet high. It is usually attached to the ceiling by cords or ropes and kept in motion by servants for that purpose. In the hot season in India the punkah is almost an essential to living.

As New Dodge, Bigger, Faster, More Rugged Than Ever, offers amazing features never before found on any car!

THOUSANDS of people who see the new, bigger Dodge . . . and then glance at the price tag . . . can hardly believe their own eyes!

Dodge made automobile history in 1933 with a car so remarkable that it leaped from 9th place to 4th . . . outselling all except the three lowest-priced cars. Even if the new, bigger Dodge were exactly the same as last year's model, it would still be the outstanding value in its field. And the new Dodge even exceeds last year's "miracle car."

And these are only a few of the extra advantages you get in Dodge. In addition, Dodge still gives you the vital, engineering achievements that made it a sensation last year. In 1933, thousands of motorists bought cars on the Dodge "Show-Down" Plan . . . the new way to compare automobile values. This year Dodge makes the same challenge! Compare Dodge with any car in its field! Ask any Dodge dealer to lay the cards on the table right before you. See what Dodge has! See what the others have! Then judge for yourself!

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Leni was still for so long that Cavanaugh began to wonder if she were asleep.

"Are you awake?"

"Yes, darling."

"Happy?"

Her face moved closer to his own; her breath on his cheek was like the fragrance of a flower.

"So happy I can't express it," she murmured. "Something is happening to us, Lucky — something that I can hardly believe is true. Do you think it possible—is there such a thing as being born again? On this earth?"

"Certainly I believe it," Lucky assured her tenderly. "It's happened to me already."

At that instant the telephone rang with a wild clamor.

"And there's Gabriel blowing his horn," he added with a grin. "Do you want to answer it?"

Leni reached out a smooth, lazy arm and picked up the phone. A man's voice, soiled and rusty reached her small ear.

"Listen, lady—and get what I'm saying straight. I want to talk to Lucky Cavanaugh bad. If you know where he is tell him to get in touch with me——"

"Who is this, please?"

"Just tell him Slug wants to speak to him!"

"Slug?"

"That's right."

Cavanaugh reached across and took the voice out of her hand.

Cavanaugh put his hand over the transmitter and spoke to Leni.

"Ask him to repeat the name and hand it back to me so I can hear his voice."

"Who is this again, please?" inquired Leni softly.

The instrument changed hands and Cavanaugh, listening closely, heard the unmistakable voice of Slug coming from its obscure source.

"Just tell Mr. Cavanaugh to get in touch with Slug as soon as possible. Slug—got that?"

"Hello there, Slug!" said Cavanaugh heartily. "What's the word?"

Leni completely relaxed, watched Cavanaugh whose face became an iron mask as he listened to what Slug was saying. He rested on one elbow and the visible tension in his whole straight figure showed that he was hearing something that was deeply important.

The idyllic pleasure in which Leni had been dreaming began to vanish. For a little while they had circled themselves around with the wall of forgetfulness against the outside world . . . a world so fragile that it had been shattered by the ringing of a telephone. It was, so it seemed, impossible to hide away from life. . . .

There was no clue toward what Cavanaugh was hearing in his half of the conversation.

"Yes . . . I see . . . Yes . . . I understand . . . Okay . . ."

He put up the instrument and swung himself to a sitting posture on the edge of the bed.

"What is it?" she asked, reaching up and running her fingers through his thick hair which was always faintly scented with cigarettes and shampoo.

"Nothing important," he said non-committally.

But Leni knew this was not true. "Tell me!"

"It's nothing, really. Slug wants to see me, and talk over something."

"You are leaving, then?"

Cavanaugh, his thoughts elsewhere, gave Leni a small wry smile. He was thinking entirely of what Slug had said.

"Yes—I'll have to get going," he answered. He did not sound regretful, but eager. "We're going to be all right—but a lot has got to be done first."

Leni got up. She handed him a comb and brush for his hair. He had long been without sleep and she fancied his eyes looked tired. She wanted to do many tender things for him, but he was in a hurry to be gone.

She stood in front of him, aching at the thought of letting him go. Her hands were outstretched and he took hold of them, but the mood of romance had evaporated. There was a new look in his eyes—hard, nervous, tense. He drew her to him and kissed her.

When shall I see you again, thought Leni and her eyes became so misted that he was but a wavering outline through her tears.

"You'll hear from me soon," he said "I'd better not phone. Mulrooney may tap the wire. This house is going to be watched. But I'll find a way."

So intent was he upon what was in his mind that he did not even notice her eyes were wet. It was more difficult than she had expected to let him go. Her arms, with the age-old movement of womankind, began to cling to him.

"Can't we both go away off together?" Leni pleaded. "We can get a ship to any part of the world."

"Got to settle up here first," answered Cavanaugh quickly.

"Then settle up as soon as possible," said Leni with her moist lips. "Make it soon — soon! I've brought you so much bad luck—so much trouble—but I'll make it all up to you. I swear I will, darling. We'll leave Hollywood—we'll go far away and live and live and live! Protect yourself, darling—don't let anything more happen! Surely, there must be a way to finish this terrible business up in a peaceable manner."

Cavanaugh kissed her again.

"Don't worry, sweetheart. We'll soon be free."

Leni knew he was going out on a mission of inevitable danger. The least she could do was to let him go with a smile.

"Make it sooner than soon!" she said as she shut the door behind him.

As Cavanaugh went down the stairs he was conscious of a suppleness of his own body. He was short of sleep, under a terrific strain—yet he had touched a reserve supply of nervous force. The second wind. In his breast, was a spiraling sensation of excitement, of tingling audacity.

The fact that Leni was behind him—waiting—constituted an electric force running through all his movements.

At the door he hesitated. The place might be watched. That was a risk that had to be met.

This feeling, however, was groundless. Despite all efficient intentions, the police are sometimes dilatory.

Cavanaugh glanced at his watch. Five minutes had elapsed since he had ceased talking to Slug. Sufficient time for the man to be here. He opened the door and boldly walked down to the curb.

In Hollywood, everyone is accustomed to the strangest costumes. Bedouins and cowboys and Foreign Legionaires come and go, attracting no attention, except from the visitors. Evening clothes are quite commonplace along the boulevard at noon. Wild automobile chases, preceded by police escorts and sirens, careen through the streets, cameras on trucks in close pursuit.

All in all, it is perhaps the most colorful and surprising city on earth. These startling characters in costumes are movie extras. Hundreds of them are employed daily. As a rule they congregate in the vicinity of the studios where they are working, but often they roam the entire city in childish pleasure with their commonplace identity concealed beneath their glamorous costumes.

It was for this reason that Slug, sitting in a battered roadster and garbed in a vivid plaid shirt with a red handkerchief around his neck and a flapping felt hat on his head, attracted no attention whatever. This costume was complicated by a set of bushy black whiskers glued to Slug's somewhat venal countenance. He wore tight gray trousers, black boots and a revolver and cartridge belt. Also, he smoked a pipe.

Even the children in the street knew what he was and did not bother to look.

He was a miner of '49—one of the four or five hundred similar extras working in one of those perennial epics of frontier life. . . .

It may be thought strange—yet it is not—that a man of Slug's temperament and profession should be garbed as a movie extra. The truth was that he worked occasionally in the pictures, as do many of his ilk.

At the moment, however, he was not so employed. The clothes he wore were probably the property of some producing company, as was a similar outfit on the floor of the car.

A man of any resourcefulness at all, in Hollywood, never has trouble about a costume.

Perhaps it was the exploit of blowing a movie theater safe by a gang dressed as ushers that opened up to Slug the great possibilities of disguise.

The important ingredient in the whole matter was his unswerving admiration for Lucky Cavanaugh. It was admiration plus loyalty. Cavanaugh—with his careless good will—had founded this feeling in Tampico. "Here's enough to take care of the hospital bill and buy a ticket home," he had said. Slug promised to pay him back, and probably meant it. Now, at any rate, he was parked in front of Leni Luneska's home, risking his own freedom to help a pal.

"They was broadcasting your escape on the police radio and I picked it up," said Slug as Cavanaugh climbed into the car. The principal pastime in Hollywood is gossip; the second, listening to the police broadcast which all radios are tuned to receive. "Better take off that Panama and put on this sombrero."

Cavanaugh without the slightest hesitation, put on the sombrero.

"If you'll take off your coat and tie this bandanna around your neck —" suggested Slug.

The Penalty Of Hurried Eating

This Common Fault Is the Cause of Most Digestive Ailments

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

RECENTLY I told you about the great strides that have been made in the treatment of stomach ulcer and other disturbances of the digestive system. Hardly a day passes that I do not receive inquiries about "indigestion", "heart burn" and "dyspepsia".

Dr. Copeland

These complaints are universal. But when we consider the manner in which most persons live, it is surprising that the number of sufferers is not even greater.

No one will deny that many of the digestive diseases can be traced to our improper methods of living. Too many men and women unwisely bolt their food and give little time or thought to their meals. There is an old saying that "man digs his grave with his teeth". This is no wonder when we think of the rush and excitement of our modern age.

Chew Your Food

The digestive process is a complicated one. To have it operate as it should requires care and attention. Neglect or abuse of the delicate mechanism of digestion quickly leads to trouble.

It is probable that few persons are familiar with the action of the digestive juices. How many know that the saliva is necessary to the proper digestion of food? This secretion of the mouth is only of value when it is thoroughly mixed with the food by slowly and carefully chewing it before swallowing.

If the food is not properly chewed and is hurriedly swallowed, an important step is omitted. The saliva is not permitted to act upon the particles of food, to get it ready for action by the stomach. As a result the food reaches the stomach in such a state that unnecessary work is demanded of the digestive juices in the stomach. This overactivity leads to distress and discomfort.

Cure for Heart-burn

Many cases of dyspepsia and indigestion are quickly cured by slow and careful chewing of food. Heart-burn, so commonly encountered in persons who are careless about their manner of dining, is often overcome by slow and leisurely eating of the food. In addition to the avoidance of hurry, emotional excitement should be shunned by those who suffer from heart-burn and other digestive disturbances.

May I impress upon you that heart-burn is not by any means a sign of heart disease. The name might indicate this. It is the result of overeating, faulty chewing and the improper choice of foods.

Of course, not all cases of indigestion and other digestive complaints are so easily remedied. It is possible the symptoms may be due to an organic disturbance of the digestive tract. Cases of this nature require complete examination in order to determine the real nature of the disease. Special medication may be required in these conditions.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

TO THE WAYNE TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

In connection with obtaining certain data for the Ground Water Survey of Ohio, it has been my aim to locate and secure information about all the wells and the outstanding springs in your township. I wish to thank all concerned for the cooperation shown in obtaining the information desired.

Especially do I wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. William Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Connor List for much appreciated, warm noon-day meals, given to a stranger. A hot, buttered biscuit on a cold January day certainly did taste good at Mr. Tatman's. At Mr. Weiler's home a number of hogs were being butchered and he gave me a mess of fresh pork. While these, and similar courtesies, are not necessary, they are appreciated. When the days were cold I was very glad to become acquainted with numerous kitchen stoves, as using a pencil on a winter day is far from pleasant outdoor work.

Many interesting incidents occur. At one home I reported that Old Jersey had a new calf, and at several places the pigs were in the corn field, etc. I was glad to meet Mr. Jonothan Pontious, who is alert and active at 80, a man who knew my father since 1861-65 when the boys wore the blue.

HIGHEST POINT

The highest point in your township is in the area to the north of Route 22, back of the Hoffman and Wardell residences. Undoubtedly the lowest point is where the Scioto leaves the border of your township near Yellowbud.

The outstanding point of interest in the township to me, is the high hill to the north of Beryl Stevenson's residence, which is crowned by a fine mound. I understand that this mound has never been explored. It should be kept intact, restored to its original height, and with some summit land immediately adjacent made into a State Park. The hill and mound are on the May farm, and the top elevation is about 735 feet. Residents of the township or county that are interested in its preservation can best obtain the desired results by getting in touch with the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society, Columbus.

Perhaps the most picturesque home in the township is that of Rose Barthelmas, to the south of Westfall on Route 104. Close by is the finest spring in the township, clear, cool and in daily use. There are a number of little brooks in this vicinity that wind their way down to the old Ohio Canal, and what a retreat these dells afford our native birds.

I am giving a few U. S. Topographic elevations that will prove of interest to most of you:

At Spunkeytown, west of Circleville bridge over Scioto.665 ft.
Westfall Centralized School.668 ft.
Junction Route 104 and road to Duncan School .....700 ft.
At forks of road below Duncan School .....697 ft.
Route 22 at road to Union Grove School junction .....721 ft.
Junction of Judas and Kinderhook Roads .....715 ft.
Route 22 at the George Wardell home .....741 ft.
Junction of Routes 22 and 104 .....694 ft.
South of Westfall on 104 at the junction or road to Kinderhook .....688 ft.

Meeting about fifty people a day and as the work is to continue for some time over the county, it is not possible to remember all of you, your location, etc. Should our paths again cross, however, I shall be glad to have you step right up and make yourself known.

Yours truly,
M. R. SHARP,
Jan. 1934. Pickaway Twp.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THE worst story I heard today has to do with these chain stores that sell everything from a tooth-pick to a sewing machine. Once upon a time there used to be groceries in one store, meats in another and drugs in another, but now they seem to have combined them all in one store.

A little while ago a lady walked into one of these overgrown general stores and says, "I'd like to have a set of chains for my car, it's too slippery to drive without them."

"I'm sorry madam but we carry only groceries."

"Well," she says, kind of indignantly, "I thought this was a chain store!"

PLAN CHANGED TO QUOTE CAR COSTS

DETROIT, Mich. Jan. 30.— An instantaneous public response, expressed in terms of orders for retail delivery, greeted the announcement this week that hereafter Chevrolet dealers would quote only actual delivered costs instead of the conventional "f. o. b." prices on new cars and trucks.

This "new deal" in automobile merchandising, designed to drive into the open every item entering into the cost of a car to the purchaser, has been instrumental in enabling dealers to book 85,000 orders for retail delivery of new cars, according to reports to William E. Holler, general sales manager of the company.

The immediate result of the new policy was a flood of wires and expressions of appreciation from both dealers and the public to Mr. Holler commending his new plan for its sincerity and honesty in driving the "pack," or increase, out of the difference between list, or f. o. b. prices, and the actual cost of the car to the customer.

"Hereafter," he said, "we are going to quote only final delivered prices. The customer wants to know how much his automobile will cost standing in front of his home. Under our new plan, he will be spared the unpleasantness of discovering that his car eventually cost him many dollars more than he had originally planned."

French Fascism

Reports that Senate, War and Navy intelligence services send back from France are almost as disquieting as those from the Far East perhaps more so.

The French General Staff is growing extremely restive. It sees Germany with almost as many airplanes as France. (On May 1, the two countries will be even. It sees Germany terrorized the Saar, preventing a fair plebiscite. It sees Germany running the Free City of Dantzing. And it can see no civilian French Government in a position to stop this.

That is why at the height of the Stivisky scandal there was a threat to form a dictatorship in France. The Generl Staff was merely using the scandal as means to an end. And that is why probably sooner or later the military will find some other excuse to dominate the government.

What will happen after that, no one can predict. But the General Staff has in mind a preventative war. It figures that France can crash Germany now, where as five years hence it might not.

This is strong stuff, and no civilian government in France can bring about such a war and remain in office overnight. That is why the military want control.

Another thing the General Staff has definite ideas about is some settlement of the American war debt. The Generals figure American good will is essential. They believe an offer should be made, even though it is not an offer for full payment. They would pay in goods, wine, even in Colonies. But, at least they would offer to pay.

Of course the military in every country suffer from overstimulated ambition, but of late they seem to be having their way surprisingly often.

Merry-Go-Round

President Roosevelt's partial restoration of veteran compensation cuts took the ground right out from under Senator Dave Reed . . . The Pennsylvania Republican, facing an ominous re-election fight this year, had it all planned to wage his campaign as the veteran's great and devoted friend despite the fact that last year he was the Hoover vanguard seeking reductions in veteran expenditures . . . Mrs. Jimmie Dunn, daughter of the meat-packing Armours and wife of the Senate Department's protocol chief, came back from chaperoning Sec. Hull through South America with a rare acuna rug. According to NRA officials there are only three employers of this industry and they employ the sum total of 12 men. They objected strenuously to being combined with any other code . . . Diplomats have been besieging him regarding their liquor quotas . . . How powerful is the steady behind the scenes pressure that Roosevelt is putting on Congress may be judged from the fact that with the session only a month old, four of the ten major appropriation bills have already been put through the House . . . California's Representative John H. Hoeppel has voted against more Administration measures than any other Democrat in the chamber . . . Hitler Attacks Kaiser's Plans

BERLIN, Jan. 30.— The aspirations of the deposed Hohenzollern dynasty were crushed by Chancellor Adolf Hitler today in a forceful speech before the Reichstag commemorating the first anniversary of his rise to power.

"I want to protest here," he said amid rousing cheers, "against the monarchist thesis that the German people can be happy only under a Kaiser.

"Under no circumstances can we recognize dynastic interests as necessary in the interest of the state.

"Despite highest respect for the merits of the monarchy and veneration for the great German emperors and kings, the final form of the state remains out of any discussion."

ASSAILS TREATY

Coming only three days after the 75th birthday of the former Kaiser, celebrated in traditional style at his exile chateau in Dorn, Holland, and simultaneous with a demand by Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia that all monarchist leagues in the country be suppressed, the chancellor's remarks were of greatest significance.

In addition, he violently denounced the Treaty of Versailles as a document which "perpetuated hatred," and defended the aims and achievements of his own regime, which he declared "far better expresses the will of the German people than obsolete parliamentarian democracy."

Reviewing the reconstruction work set in motion with establishment of the third reich, the chancellor said:

"Corruption has been wiped out. The foundations of farm aid have been laid. Thirty per cent of the 5,500,000 who were unemployed last year have been put to work within a quarter of the time I scheduled.

"Industrial production has increased through tax reductions and subsidies. Our finances have been put in order by means of ruthless economy."

MANY DEATHS

the strong wind, the flames defied firemen's five-hour efforts to save the girls' personal effects. Fire hoses froze solid and hand extinguishers had to be used to put the fire out.

An overheated furnace was said to have started the blaze. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.— Stung by a 54-mile-an-hour northwest gale New York and the adjacent seaboard shivered today in near zero weather and contemplated the prediction of weather forecasters that just as cold if not colder weather would be its portion for the next two or three days.

Dropping 52 degrees to 5 above zero within sixteen hours, the mercury this morning hovered just above zero mark and the weather bureau looked for sub-zero temperatures if the winds did not abate.

With suffering widespread from the sudden biting cold, the city administration moved rapidly to alleviate distress among the homeless and unemployed.

HUGE QUESTION

2. Financing the newly enacted old age pension law which it is estimated will require $6,000,000 for 1934 and $8,000,000 for 1933.

3. Providing a total of $8,900,000 for weak school districts.

4. Finding a means of eliminating much of the estimated $200,000,000 tax delinquencies.

COMMISSION SPIT

With the special joint taxation commission badly divided, it appeared that the governor, in his taxation message tomorrow, would leave it to the legislature to decide whether the $51,000,000 needed by the state will be raised primarily through a sales tax, an earned income tax or a combination of the two.

While avowedly in favor of a retail sales tax, with few exceptions, Governor George White has said he will not attempt to "cram it down the throats" of the legislature.

Out of the labors of the taxation commission came eight tax bills drawn by Prof. Clarence Laylin, of Ohio State University, who also drafted the liquor control bill.

The first provided for equal taxation of municipally-owned and private public utilities. Municipal utilities at present are tax exempt but the bill would tax their property as well as their receipts.

Mrs. Harold Dowler and son, Gene, W. Franklin-st, returned Monday from a week-end visit with Mr. Dowler and mother, Mrs. Minnie Dowler of Lancaster.

with his monetary advisers at 3:30 p. m., when he will sign the gold bill.

Incoming mail at the White House—made up of every conceivable type of birthday greeting—has reached unprecedented proportions.

Hundreds of contributions have come in for the Warm Springs foundation. All of these were sent to Keith Morgan in New York, chairman of the Warm Springs trustees.

ONE IS EXCEPTION

One gift particularly attracted the President. It was a small Christmas tree, from the branches of which were hung heart-shaped pocketbooks filled with pennies and other coins. The President was so attracted by it that he kept it on his desk all day.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is the best laxative for everybody. Senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the catharties that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 5 Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, January 30, 1934

Well, sir, if it were not for the fact that so many of our "lookers" come back and became "buyers" of our Estate Heatrola Coal range, we wouldn't feel so "cocky" about it. During the past year, a number of homes have been graced by adding one of these ranges and in every instance, the "looker" came back and bought. Therefore, you can't blame us if we get all puffed up about this remarkable value in a coal range. Only recently a couple came in and let us show them this range. They informed us later, when they came back to close the deal, that they had visited a number of stores in larger cities but that they had found nothing that could compare with our value in the Heatrola range. If you are considering the purchase of a new cooking appliance, you owe it to yourself to see this modern and lovely coal range.

Speaking of cooking appliances, H. G. and a Pyrofax man were calling on our customers recently. Mrs. S—, out west of Roundtown, informed us that for two years her average consumption of Pyrofax gas for all household uses amounted to only $1.04 per week. And during this time, her service has not been interrupted in any way, nor has she had any dirt, smoke, or odor from her Estate gas range. Isn't it wonderful, folks, that country folks can have the same convenient and satisfactory manner of cooking and baking that is enjoyed by their cousins? Yes, and the price of operation is not too high, either. When it comes to buying a new range for your country home, we'd suggest that you give Pyrofax gas a thought.

One thing leads up to another. The mention of the Estate gas range makes us think that it's not often that the factory will permit a price reduction on their products. However, for a limited time, and subject to prior sale, we are authorized to offer you two numbers at greatly reduced prices. One of these is an elevated oven type, formerly priced at $74.50, now marked $54.50; the other one is a flat top number, formerly priced at $79.50, but we can now take only $59.50. These two numbers are fully enameled inside and out, insulated ovens, and with ThermEstate oven heat control. The ovens are of the Fresh Air type, being heated like a hot air furnace heats a home—via circulation. Don't put off buying one of these remarkable "buys." First come, first served.

Mr. and Mrs. D—, up in the north-end, did a very wise act just recently. Needing a bed-room suite, springs and mattress, they came in and placed their order. Now they have their room nicely furnished and at a price that will not be equaled for many years. Furniture has advanced since last July, but it is still low in price. Why not do like the D— family did—invest in furniture now before the prices increase? Put your money in your home and save taxes, and enjoy your home.

They Satisfy—

You know, that means something

By "balancing" 6 different types of home-grown tobaccos—

By adding just the right amount of the right kinds of Turkish—

By blending and cross-blending—"welding" these tobaccos together—

We believe we have in Chesterfield a cigarette that's milder and tastes better.

"They Satisfy" has always seemed to us the best way of describing what we mean by this milder better taste.
